

Dr. Sarah Fessler, EBCAP Chief Medical Officer, Elected President of RI Medical Society

Sarah Fessler, MD, Chief Medical Officer at East Bay Community Action Program, has been elected as the new President of Rhode Island Medical Society - a 204 year-old organization that is a conduit of support for local physicians.

Other officers include: Vice President Bradley Collins, MD, of Lincoln, Jose Polanco, MD, of Cranston, who was re-elected Treasurer, and E. Christine Brousseau, MD, of Cranston, who was re-elected Secretary.

Dr. Fessler succeeds Russell Settupane, MD, of East Greenwich, who served as President of the Society for the past year.

All positions run through September 2017.

Rhode Island Medical Society is a voluntary association of physicians, physician assistants and medical students. It supports and advocates for all Rhode Island physicians in their efforts to provide the best possible care to their patients. The Society is the vehicle by which the medical community in Rhode Island meets the evolving challenges of medical practice and quality patient care. The Society represents the interests, values and needs of the medical profession and promotes enlightened public policy in the field of health care.
